ON THE COVER

veteran Warriors . . . Kenneth A. Polcyn from Williamsport, Pennsylvania and Wayne E.
Bohn from Yeagerstown, Pennsylvania. Pol-cyn, a Junior, was N.A.I.A. All-State end last year. Wayne Bohn, a Sophomore, was one of the leading ground-gainers for the Warriors last year. Great things are expected from both boys this season.

A Message from the President

Aug. 22, 1956

Dear Alumni:

The 1956 Fall Term at Lycoming College will open with over 800 students enrolled. New dormitory facilities have been provided to make a pleasant campus home for a larger number of our students. New faculty and administrative staff have been added to increase the effectiveness of our educational program. We have every reason to believe that we are on the threshold of another very exciting and significant college year.

The college administration is very grateful for the interest and enthusiasm which the alumni have for Lycoming. We are proud of the record you are making for the college, and we want you to be proud of your Alma Mater. To this end we value your suggestions. Many of the new developments on campus have grown from seed ideas which have been planted by graduates of the college.

The character of a college is determined very largely by the character of the student body. The admissions policy at Lycoming has been designed to admit the very finest young people. We must have students who are capable of doing academic work on the college level and who show significant promise of usefulness in our society. We invite your assistance in the recruiting of such a student body. Many of our finest students have been referred to us by our alumni. We are grateful to you for this service and we encourage you to continue it.

When you return to the campus this fall, plan to stop in my office. I shall be glad to discuss the future of the college with you. It must ever remain our mutual concern.

Very sincerely,

Honorary Degrees Conferred at One Hundred Eighth Commencement

EDITORS NOTE: A significant event during the 108th Annual Commencement program was the conferring of honorary degrees upon four distinguished persons. Since this was the first time the Board of Directors had taken such action, it marked a milestone in the long history of Lycoming College. The College is proud that two of the recipients were Alumni—Rev. Victor B. Hann, Superintendent of the Methodist Home For Children at Mechanicsburg, Pennsylvania, and James W. Sterling, Professor Emeritus from Lycoming College. Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke, resident Bishop of the Pittsburg Area of the Methodist Church, and Pauline H. Frederick, NBC woman news analyst received the other two degrees. The citation for each is printed below.

JAMES W. STERLING, Doctor of Letters,

Sponsored by Dr. J. Milton Skeath

For more than thirty years you have been in the classroom as a teacher. Most of this time has been spent in Lycoming College or its predecessor institutions. Hundreds of students have passed by your desk and caught some of your spirit as they learned their lessons in literature. Yourself a graduate of Williamsport Dickinson Seminary in the Class of 1919, you are steeped in the traditions of "The School on the Hilltop." Because you have maintained contact with so many of your former students through regular correspondence, it is little wonder that you are known affectionately to so many of them as "Our Own Mr. Chips." Always understanding, ever alert, quick of wit, you have been a friend to students. Intellectually competent, dedicated to teaching, unassuming in your manner, you have been held in the highest esteem by your colleagues on the faculty.

Therefore, upon the recommendation of the Board of Directors, and by mandamus, I admit you to the Degree of Doctor of Letters, honoris causa, with all the rights, privileges and distinction thereunto appertaining, in token of which I present you with this diploma and cause you to be invested with the white hood of Lycoming College appropriate to your degree.

LLOYD CHRIST WICKE, Doctor of Divinity

Sponsored by Mr. Howard Ronsey

You have had a distinguished career in The Methodist Church. As a pastor, district superintendent, and bishop you have served the church with devotion and dedication. In a time when some have called preaching suspect, you have brought to the pulpit a keen intellect and a warm-hearted faith. In a day when some have called the gospel into question, you have testified to a faith that can transform human life even as it ministers to the social and economic problems of our society. In an hour when the world has cried out of its suffering, you have led the church in its ministry of mercy and reconciliation. Able churchman, outstanding preacher, humble and tender in the office of bishop, you are a credit to the high calling of the Christian ministry.

Therefore, upon the recommendation of the Board of Directors, and by its mandamus, I admit you to the Degree of Doctor of Divinity, honoris causa, with all the rights, privileges, and distinction thereunto appertaining, in token of which I present you with this diploma and cause you to be invested with the scarlet hood of Lycoming College appropriate to your degree.

VICTOR BLAKE HANN, Doctor of Humanities, Sponsored by The Honorable Robert F. Rich

Today you return to your home town. Since you walked these streets as a boy your path has led through a succession of pastorates in the Central Pennsylvania Annual Conference of The Methodist Church to The Methodist Home For Children at Mechanicsburg, where, for fourteen years, you have been Superintendent. Here you have been a father to the fatherless. In you love has come alive for many who have known little of love. The Christian gospel which says, "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not for of such is the kingdom of God," has become incarnate in your gentle concern for children. You have taught boys and girls to love life and have given them a faith by which to live. For this ministry there is no greater reward nor deeper satisfaction than the smile on the face of a child or a song which you have put on his lips.

Therefore, upon the recommendation of the Board of Directors, and by its mandamus, I admit you to the Degree of Doctor of Humanities, honoris causa, with all the rights, privileges and distinction thereunto appertaining, in token of which I present you with this diploma and cause you to be invested with the white hood of Lycoming College appropriate to your degree.

PAULINE H. FREDERICK, Doctor of Humanities, Sponsored by Dr. Helen B. Weidman

You hold the distinction of being the only woman network news commentator in the country. Through your N.B.C. radio program, "Pauline Frederick Reporting," your name and voice are known across the nation. Your special interest in the United Nations has brought added significance to your Sunday broadcast, "Pauline Frederick at the UN." Your career as a news analyst has been highlighted by such internationally significant assignments as the Nuremburg trials; the Communist and Alger Hiss trials; the conferences of the Big Four Foreign Ministers in New York and Paris; and the lifting of the Berlin blockade. Only recently you received the "McCall's Mike," the top award in the annual presentations to American women in radio and television, for bringing to the nation "some of the most competent and courageous newscasting on the air." Perhaps one of your most exciting assignments is to be "anchor man" for the N.B.C. Radio Network during the National Democratic and Republican conventions. You will be the first woman to have attained such distinction in your field. It is, therefore, significant that you should be the first woman to receive an honorary degree from Lycoming College.

Therefore, upon the recommendation of the Board of Directors, and by its mandamus, I admit you to the Degree of Doctor of Humanities, honoris causa, with all the rights, privileges and distinction thereunto appertaining, in token of which I present you with this diploma and cause you to be invested with the white hood of Lycoming College appropriate to your degree.

Lycoming Adds Two New Buildings

One phase of the Development Program at Lycoming College calls for an increase in its physical facilities. The first two buildings that are being added are the men's dormitory and the science building.

Following closely will be a student union building.

ence building. The dormitory will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall semester. The science building will be ready around January, 1957.

The new Men's Dormitory will follow the Modified Georgian Colonial trend of other recent additions to the Lycoming College Campus. 144 men students will enjoy the latest in dormitory accommodations. Each double room will be completely equipped with built-in desks and bureaus and Hollywood type beds.

One of the best features will be the new lounges. Provision is being made for three: two on either side of the main lobby and one large lounge on the ground floor. This latter lounge is approximately 25'x80' and will provide the added attraction of a large brick fireplace.

The floor of the main lobby will be tastefully finished in terazzo tile.

The entire dormitory, with overall dimensions of 52'x183', is slightly larger than Rich Hall. All three floors will be covered with attractive asphalt tile, and the ceilings will be finished in acoustic tile. Completely fire-resistant, the dormitory will be brick veneer on cinder block with steel bar joists and concrete slabs for flooring.

The front of the dormitory will face the college campus and will be located between the John W. Long Library and Washington Boulevard. The entrance to the building will be beautified by a flagstone terrace.

When completed at a total cost of approximately $425,000, the Men's Dormitory, together with Rich Hall, will provide Lycoming College Students with the finest in small college accommodations.

The Science Building will occupy a position on the southeast corner of the campus to the rear of Bradley Hall. Built of brick and reinforced concrete flooring, the building when remodeled will house 8 laboratories and 6 classrooms and a lecture room seating 142 students.

In addition to the building itself, much of the laboratory equipment will be new. Generally speaking, any equipment that has been purchased since World War II will be transferred to the new building, the remainder will be salvaged.

The total cost of the building will be approximately $175,000. This figure does not include any new equipment.

These buildings represent more than bricks and mortar—they are the tools that will be used to bring to the students at Lycoming the kind of an education that will make of them the leaders of tomorrow.

FACULTY APPROVES

With recent approval by the faculty, Lycoming College will participate in two programs that will enable undergraduates to study off campus and receive college credit. This is in line with the increasing practice of American Colleges to encourage promising students to acquire experience elsewhere to the advantage of themselves and to the College campus when they return.

The first program is known as the Junior Year Abroad. This permits students to receive credit for their Junior year though spent in Universities elsewhere in the world. The Scandinavian - American Foundation urged that Lycoming College participate in this type of program and Miss Barbara Ault, was selected to spend her junior year in Denmark and Norway.

The second program is known as the Washington Semester program at American University. This permits a senior who has proven his ability in American Government and History to spend the first semester of his or her senior year in Washington, D. C. Here the student is enabled to acquire first-hand knowledge concerning the American Government in operation.

Both of these programs meet with the approval of Lycoming's accrediting agencies and are considered to be a step forward in providing the student-body with increasing opportunities for a meaningful education.

Campus Hosts Little League World Series

From Aug. 21 to Aug. 24, Lycoming College was host to the Little League World Series. Players and their managers from Penna., New Mexico, Mass., Ala., Calif., Mich., New Jersey, and New York gathered to participate in the 10th Annual World Series. The College made available dormitory and dining facilities to these future "stars of the diamond."

The Harry E. Humphrey, Jr. Scholarship to the outstanding Little League player of 1956 was awarded to Farral W. Dunham, from Roswell, New Mexico. It was presented in the name of the President and the Board of Directors of the College. Harry E. Humphrey, Jr., is President of the U. S. Rubber Company, the sponsor of the Little League World Series.

MERIT AWARDS FOR FACULTY

On May 15, 1956, at the assembly program, the President of the College made Merit Awards to three faculty members. This was the first time in the history of the College that such awards were granted. In each case the amount granted was $500.00. When he made the awards, President Wertz stated that in addition to continued efforts that are being made to provide our faculty with salaries commensurate with their abilities and devotion, the Board of Directors of the College wished to show appreciation for those who during the year rendered outstanding service. The selection of such faculty members was not an easy one, and it was only after careful consideration that Miss Frances E. Knights, Dr. J. Milton Skeath, and Professor Robert H. Ewing were selected. In making the awards, President Wertz made the following citations:

MISS FRANCES E. KNIGHTS you are respected by your students for your knowledge of mathematics and the ability to teach what you know. You are respected by your colleagues on the faculty as "a teacher's teacher," unselfish, pleasant, and understanding. You are respected by all who know you for the generous and gracious way in which you give of your time and interest in extra-curricular affairs. You are an inspiration on the campus and it is my high honor to present to you this Merit Award for Outstanding Service to Lycoming College.

DR. J. MILTON SKEATH for thirty-five years you have been a tower of strength on this campus. You have watched the school grow from a seminary, to a junior college, to a fully accredited senior college. During the current academic year you have made the wisdom of your years available to younger educators who have sought your counsel and advice. Your stability has been a steady influence through days of change, and faculty and students alike have found in you strength. Therefore, it is my high honor to present to you this Merit Award for Outstanding Service to Lycoming College.

PROFESSOR ROBERT H. EWING you have distinguished yourself as a scholar, a teacher and a gentleman. Your breadth of understanding of the noblest traditions of the liberal arts, and your keen appreciation of the aims of Lycoming College have made you a valuable member of our family. You have served the interests of the college both on and off the campus with diligence and faithfulness. You have gained the respect of the community, as well as the campus, where you are held in high regard by the students and your colleagues. Therefore, it is my high honor to present to you this Merit Award for Outstanding Service to Lycoming College.

President Wertz Receives Degree

At the Founder's Day Convocation for Dickinson College which was held on May 1, 1956, President D. Frederick Wertz was honored by receiving the Degree Doctor of Laws. Dr. Wertz, a member of the Dickinson Class of 1937 is the sixth Dickinson Alumnus to serve Lycoming College as its President.

FACULTY WELCOMES

MISS M. LOUISE CLARK has been appointed Reference Librarian with the rank of Instructor. Miss Clark obtained her B. S. E. from Lock Haven State Teachers College, her B. S. L. S. from Drexel Institute of Technology, and has done additional work at the University of Pennsylvania.

MRS. ELIZABETH H. KING has been appointed Instructor in Secretarial Studies. She attended Dickinson Junior College and received her B. S. B. A. from Geneva College.

MR. JOSEPH R. PECK, who has been appointed Instructor in English, attended the University of Pennsylvania and received his M. A. degree from the University of Florida. He also attended the University of Geneva in Switzerland and the University of Alabama.

MR. OTTO LOUIS SONDER, JR. has been appointed Assistant Professor of Sociology. He is an alumnus of Dickinson Junior College, American University where he received his B. A., Bucknell University where he received his M. A., and is presently working for his doctorate at Penn State University.

REV. DONALD H. TREESE has been appointed Assistant Professor of Religion and Director of Religious Activities. Rev. Treese attended Junico College and received his Bachelor of Divinity from the University of Chicago.

DR. CHAI HYUN YOON has been appointed Assistant Professor of Biology. Dr. Yoon took his undergraduate studies at Doshisha University, Japan, and Alma College. He attended Utah State College and received his PhD from Ohio State University.

DONALD T. KYTE will come to Lycoming with an appointment as Assistant Professor in Economics. Mr. Kyte received his Bachelor of Arts degree at Wesleyan University and his Master of Arts degree at Boston University. He is currently working on his doctorate in Economics at the University of Maryland.

Lycoming College Faculty on Television

The 1956-57 fall semester for the College of the Air television program has been announced. This program is sponsored by WGAL-TV, Lancaster, Pennsylvania, as a public service and is viewed by an estimated 45,000 persons in the Central Pennsylvania area. By cooperation of the Williamsport Cable companies, the series is also available to the residents of Lycoming County.

Participating colleges this year are Shippensburg State Teachers College, Elizabethtown College, Millersville State Teachers College, Franklin and Marshall College, Lebanon Valley College, and Lycoming College. The program is scheduled to start on Monday, October 1, 1956, and extends through Friday, January 18, 1957. Air time is Monday through Friday each week at 9:00 A.M.

Lycoming College's first semester theme will be "Historical Foundations of American Democracy". The participating Professors and their subjects are as follows:

October 8, 1956—"Origins of Democracy in Antiquity", Professor Robert H. Ewing, Associate Professor of History.

October 22, 1956—"Democracy in the Medieval World", Professor Robert H. Ewing, Associate Professor of History.

November 5, 1956—"English Democracy Through The Rule of Law", Dr. Thomas G. Barnes, Assistant Professor of History.

November 19, 1956—"Revolution, The Constitution, and American Democracy", Dr. Loring B. Priest, Professor of History.

December 3, 1956—"The Birth and Development of American Democracy", Dr. Loring B. Priest, Professor of History.

December 17, 1956—"Critical Areas in Democracy Today", Dr. Helen B. Weidman, Associate Professor of Political Science.

GOING TO COLLEGE

A college education is an invaluable experience for many young men and women, but it is a mistake to assume that it is so for all. Going to college has become so much the habit of mind of the American people that we tend to close our eyes to the large number of young people for whom the college experience is harmful rather than helpful. To be successful in college a young man or woman must have high intelligence, social maturity, and a real purpose in life, which the college of his choice can help him achieve.—Ex-President Bancroft Bentley, Simmons College.

Artists and Lecturers Series

1956 - 57

The Artists and Lecturers Series for 1956-57 will bring to the Lycoming College Campus some of America's best known personalities. In making the announcement Delbert Gardner, Instructor in English and chairman of the Committee, said that "one aspect of a liberal arts education is the opportunity to see and listen to great artists and lecturers. The series was planned to afford our students this opportunity. We sincerely believe their cultural horizons will be broadened as a result of such a program."

The schedule of performances is as follows:

October 19, 1956 — Kovach and Rabovsky

Hungarian ballet stars who escaped to freedom from behind the Iron Curtain.

December 3, 1956 — Claude Rains

Distinguished star of Stage and Screen.

January 7, 1957 — Vienna Choir Boys

One of the oldest and most appealing musical organizations in the world.

February 14, 1957 — Ivy Baker Priest

One of America's foremost women.
Treasurer of the United States in the Eisenhower administration.

March 19, 1957 — Barbara Custance

One of the favorite pianists in the United States and Canada.

April 25, 1957 — Adele Addison

Well on her way to becoming one of America's finest concert and opera stars—a first lady in the music-lyric theatre.

The Place of Religion in the Liberal Arts College

By DONALD H. TREESE

It is a well known fact that the earliest endeavors in higher education in America stemmed from religious interests and practically all of the outstanding academic foundations of the Colonial Period represent documentation of the covenant between religion and higher education. During the Colonial Period and continuing into the first part of the nineteenth century, church-related and privately supported institutions continued to reflect this close and, supposedly, insoluble tie. Religion's place on a campus was not generally questioned or open to debate.

During the latter part of the last century, however, certain forces within college halls and walls began to make themselves felt with increasing strength, and by the early twentieth century had turned the assumption concerning religion's place into a serious question. Denominational narrowness, specialization of knowledge, and a secularism fed and nurtured by increased reliance on the method and concerns of science forced more than one institution to "go easy" on religion as a respectable part of its curriculum, and, subsequently, as an influential organized force on the campus.

That the pendulum is swinging back the other way is a recent development, and one which will lead to significant changes in higher education's view of religion in this age of anxiety and crisis. My concern in this paper, speaking primarily as a minister, is to attempt to spell out the place religion at its best holds in the liberal arts college at its best.

In light of the historical facts cited above, it follows that religion has a place in the liberal arts college as the custodian of historical roots and traditions. There is no small help and guidance to be found in an ever-conscious awareness of past history—origins, purposes, developments and goals—. Particularly is this true of a church-related institution whose history has been a simultaneous development with the churches that founded it and have supported it through the years. But, characteristic of the American mind, there has been a lack of familiarity and adequate appreciation for the past. Ignorance of the past is not religion at its best; only a hollow and sentimental sense of unity with the past is not the liberal arts college at its best. If inventory is to be truly taken of the degree to which original trusts have been fulfilled and broken, original ideals followed and changed, original ideas maintained and modified (and this can be for the better), then a sensitivity to the past—a conscious awareness of historical roots—must be present and maintained. And what can better guarantee such an awareness than that which gave the institution its earliest and most influential impetus, if not birth itself—religion.

Secondly, religion has a place in the liberal arts college because of religion's concern for ultimate questions concerning man, the world and God. Here the creative purpose and end of the educational process is brought into focus and related to that which concerns man most profoundly, and which goes beyond him. Here the hackneyed "why" as over against "how" becomes a concern with spiritual dimensions. What is man, what is his chief end, and can he fulfill that end through the arts, the humanities, the physical and social sciences? What is his relationship to the world about him, to what extent is he creator and creature, and can he possess the wisdom to know the difference? What does it mean to have been created in the image of God, to worship Him, and to serve Him? These questions are religious questions for they are of ultimate concern. To the degree the various fields of inquiry and the departments within them raise and deal with these questions, to that degree they are religious. To include a concern for the relating of facts and theories and analyses to the pursuit of happiness is to possess religious presuppositions—whether it be the historian, the economist, the artist, or the psychologist.

One great obstacle to recognizing this concern as religious is the stubborn persistence of some individuals to define religion solely in the naive terms of often meager personal religious experience. To them the fear of dogmatism and uniformity of thought are correlative with the thought of religion. Dogmatism is not religion at its best, for at its best religion does justice to fundamental human freedom and maintains its fundamental centrality in life. To dismiss religion in perfunctory fashion because one hasn't found or even bothered to seek out interpretations that present its essential nature is simply dogmatism in different dress.

Thus, religion's place as concern for the ultimate can be honored when the specialized fields ask ultimate questions. It is for the Department of Religion and the organized religious program on the campus to take the lead in directing and assuring the honoring of this essential function.

Thirdly, as a corollary of the concern for ultimate issues, religion has a place in the liberal arts college as a kindly critic of departments, projects and policies—including the special department entrusted with its own concerns. We have mentioned that religion in its departmental and organizational forms should lead the way in that confrontation with ultimate issues necessary for fulfillment and wholeness in higher education. In light of this press for extensiveness, religion can and should constructively criticize all indifference, laxity and failure in this direction.

Admittedly, there is great danger here, for an unfortunate misunderstanding of religion's motive may occur. But, religion must exercise its essential freedom and part of this freedom is kindly judgment. If it is clear to all that religion is also its own critic and is continually examining itself, and that its sole critical purpose is to urge other fields to press further in consideration of ultimate questions, then the dangers should be greatly lessened. Herein operated that "Protestant Principle" given wide currency by Paul Tillich: to proclaim a message confidently while continually criticizing one's confident proclamation of it.

Finally, because it is the custodian of historical roots and traditions, because of its concern for ultimate issues, and because it is at its best a constructive critic, religion has a place in the liberal arts college as an ecumenical force offering a real sense of unity in holding together various fields of inquiry. All fields can find a unique unity of purpose in a common quest for answers to significant questions hungering for such. A mutual sharing are the seeds of a close-knit fellowship that by its very nature would be religious.

What this would mean to a college campus community and its religious life, formal and informal, is growth and power of rare and unique dimensions. The effect it would have on the student body, who should never stand alone and apart in the endeavor to develop the best religious situation, would be of providential proportions. To ponder further, the effect such a "fellowship of the concerned" would produce on the churches related to the college might well be the college's best service to the forces that gave it its birth.

It may well be that we shall not have better churches until we have better colleges. When religion is permitted to function in its varied role as custodian, urging encounter with ultimate concerns, criticizing the progress made or not made, and therein offering a platform of unity, then the possibility of better colleges and better churches takes on the finer air of probability.

Advantage in Smallness

For the great majority of students at the undergraduate level, a small college is infinitely to be preferred. As a rule, in such a college, the admission and graduation standards are high and the student who successfully passes them is of necessity unusual.

The small college has small classes and more individual instruction is available. This careful attention to personal needs is of great help to the student who might otherwise be ignored or neglected. The teaching is likely to be of the highest quality, with the heads of departments teaching freshmen courses and not advanced courses only.

In addition, the small college offers many more opportunities for leadership development, as the latent capabilities of the individual are more quickly recognized and put to work.

As education should be for the whole of life, this is a factor which can not be overlooked.

—President Dale H. Moore, Cedar Crest College

The toughest schedule in the history of the college faces the Lycoming football team this fall. Moravian, the opening team on the schedule, was rated as the eighth best team in the state last season. They lose no key players and will be greatly strengthened by incoming players. Lebanon Valley is the second opponent and there is no doubt as to their being much better this fall. Several returns and transfer students who will be eligible for the first time will help them greatly. Juniata comes to Lycoming for the third game, which will be Homecoming; and they are undefeated for three years and participated in the Tangerine Bowl on last New Year's Day. They gained a 6-6 tie in this Florida encounter. So it goes with all the 1956 teams. They are all good and there is no soft spot anywhere on the schedule.

Wilkes College returns to our football schedule and will appear here in our first night contest of the season.

The Wilkes game will be followed by one with Pennsylvania Military College on their home field. This should prove to be an outstanding game, with Lycoming out to seek revenge for the 14-13 loss, in a sea of mud, last year.

Next, comes another newcomer, but one with a lot of potential rivalry—Dickinson College. The "red-devils" will meet Lycoming College in football for the first time on Saturday, November 3, at Carlisle.

On Saturday, November 10, at 8:00 P.M. the Lock Haven Bald Eagles invade the Warriors' backyard for a night game at the South Williamsport High School Stadium. This will be the second Dad's Day, and should prove to be another outstanding game of the season. The season's final game will be Geneva at home on Saturday, November 17.

Twenty lettermen will form the nucleus of the 1956 squad: These include Frank Agnello, Wayne Bohn, Charles Bonadio, Dick Cramer, Louis DeFebo, Ed Fatula, Ric Fisher, John Grier, Emery Hanscom, Dave Himes, John Joe, Dick Kaluza, Norm McGraw, Jim Miller, Paul Motta, Joe Nicholas, Ken Polcyn, Rich Reimold, Leroy Thompson, and Wilbur White.

The Lycoming squad will continue to be younger than similar college squads elsewhere. Rich Fisher, from Williamsport, will be the only senior on the squad. There will be eight juniors returning and the sophomores from last year's fine freshmen group will dominate the squad. Incoming freshmen will augment the squad to full strength in numbers.

With the possible exceptions of center Don Baity and guard Frank Tagliaferri, the starting line-ups of last year will be intact. Wilbur White, tackle, and Ken Polcyn, end, first and second all-state N.A.I.A. choices respectively last year, will be leading the way for the line-men. Speedsters Wayne Bohn and John Grier are ready to go at the halfback spots, and "Jumping" John Joe is back to defend his opposition as fullback. Able Paul Motta is ready to lead the squad as the number one quarterback. Veterans Dave Himes, Dick Cramer, and Emery Hanscom give solidarity to the tackle spot. Sophomores Fred Agnello, Jim Hart, Norm McGraw, and Don Bohensky lead the guards. The end situation is in good hands with Dick Kaluza, Jim Miller, and Rich Fisher backing up players.

So far, little has been said about the incoming freshmen. We must wait for them to prove that they are capable of playing the calibre of football played at Lycoming. There is every reason to believe, however, that this group of freshmen will be as good a group as those of last year.

This fall will inaugurate a Junior Varsity schedule which will be most helpful in developing the younger players and give them the much-needed game experience.

The coaching staff will be headed by Coach Dave Bussey assisted by Hank Green and Rolie Meyers.

George Lawther will continue to act as trainer, and Art Coup will be the head manager for the third straight year. He will be ably assisted by Paul McDowell, John Rundio, George Ahn, and several freshmen managers yet to select.

CONTINUING ALUMNI EDUCATION

RICHARD A. LANK

This summer it was my privilege to attend the 41st Annual Conference of the American Alumni Council at French Lick, Indiana. I came away from that conference with a renewed conviction that the future of higher education rests in large part upon the firm foundation of Alumni interest and support.

There were, moreover, some varying aspects of an Alumni program that aroused my interest and curiosity. Mr. John Lairdner from NEWSWEEK magazine said in a talk that the functions of the alumni were "to re-unite and to write checks." Unfortunately this is all too true in many colleges and universities. I have had the feeling that perhaps it was true here at Lycoming during the past year.

This is not to say that financial support is not important—to the alumni and to the college. It is, but it is not the only relationship that should exist.

For sometime, I have been attracted by a phase of alumni interest and support called Continuing Alumni Education. It was, therefore, with a great deal of interest that I read the following paragraphs in the annual report to the membership by Ernest T. Stewart, Jr., Executive Secretary of the American Alumni Council:

"In the field of continuing alumni education, too, we are standing on the threshold of something new and exciting to contemplate."

"For on April 23, the Fund for Adult Education and the American Alumni Council co-sponsored a one-day Exploratory Conference on Continuing Alumni Education. Financed by a grant from the Fund, the conference brought together a small but representative group of college presidents, administrative officers, extension directors, alumni secretaries, and magazine editors and executives of leading educational associations for a vigorous discussion of all that is involved in penetrating the "sheepskin curtain" that all too often shuts the alumnus off from the intellectual stimulation of his college career."

For the most part alumni programs have been one-sided and have consisted only of alumni giving to the college. There must be some way that the college can continue to make a contribution to the intellectual development of its graduates. It does not seem logical that a college can nurture intellect for four years and then simply because a diploma has been awarded call the task finished.

We are living in days when "intellectual stimulation" is needed. And what better agency to do this than the small liberal arts college? Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C. S. C. from Notre Dame Foundation has said, "only a thoroughly developed system of continuing liberal education, with the accumulated riches of its heritage and traditions, and a strong adherence in our educational system to the religious roots and affiliations of our church-related schools can supply the broad need of a public philosophy. We realize now that the problems which for a time permitted material solution, are now demanding the broader perspectives of theology, philosophy, and the social sciences."

The program that could be envisioned is a program that will help our graduates go on to be the men and women of broad interest and training that they promised to be when they were on campus. Such a program is not night school or extension, or hobbies. Such a program is intellectual stimulus—some program that will help them generally, and particularly to think more and more effectively as a basis for their daily work and civic leadership. Good leadership depends on good thinking by those who lead. Good thinking is not acquired with an AB or BS degree but depends upon a constant, permanent program of intellectual exercise that goes on throughout one's life.

Could the Alumni Association of Lycoming College launch such a program? It could, if it would!

Alumni Association Board of Directors Meets

On Saturday, July 28, 1956, Pres. Vic Hann held the first meeting of the newly-elected Board of Directors. 27 members were present. Following the dinner, which was held at the Lycoming Hotel, President of the College, Dr. D. Frederick Wertz made a few brief remarks in which he called attention to the increasingly important role the Alumni were playing in the development goals of Lycoming College. He cited the significant increase in the 1956 Alumni Fund giving, and urged even greater participation in the years ahead. Turning to the plans for next year, he suggested that the Alumni Association give some of its attention to the development of Alumni Clubs in those areas where numbers of Alumni lived and to the strengthening of the clubs that are now organized. During the business meeting, President Hann named the following committees:

Alumni Fund: Dr. Ralph C. Geigle, Richard Todhunter, Willis W. Willard, George Smith, Mrs. Margaret Welker.

Football Tickets: George B. Houtz, Paul P. John, James J. Keller, Don L. Larrabee, Harry L. Nixon, Phillip N. Pulizzi, Frances E. Toohey, Miller V. McClintock.

Nominating Committee—Trustee: Dr. Robert Croyle, Don L. Larrabee, Rev. Ardell Gould, Henry Birkenstock, Mrs. Pauline Brungard.

Nominating Committee—Association: Russell Zacharias, Don L. Larrabee, Rev. Thomas E. Anderman, Mrs. Charles Stoeve, Miss Louise Heckman.

Homecoming: Nathan Stuart, Eva L. Keller, John C. Harmon, Orville C. Coldy, Betsy Hickey Dennen, Caldwell Mathias, Mrs. A. Roy Flanigan.

Alumni Day: Mrs. Samuel Hutchison, Rev. Harry Stenger, Mrs. Paul John, Miss Quindina Giuliani, James Askins, Rev. Walter Canon, Mrs. Margaret Welker, Dr. J. Milton Rogers, Rev. William Young, Rev. Lawrence Barton

By-Laws and Revisions: Mr. Evaristo J. Giuliani, Jr., Mr. James F. Cendoma, Mr. Dean R. Fisher.

When he named the committees, President Hann said that it would be the policy of his administration to work through the committees and that the work of the Association would be successful only if the committees were successful.

Upon the completion of other business, the meeting was adjourned and the next Directors meeting was set for Homecoming Saturday, October 13, 1956. Notice will be sent to all Directors.

ALUMNI DUES DISCONTINUED

At the annual meeting of the Alumni Association of Lycoming College held on June 2, 1956, two changes in the Constitution and by-laws were authorized. The first change eliminated the annual dues and dues for life memberships. All persons who have successfully completed one year of study at Lycoming College, or Williamsport Dickinson Junior College, and all former students of Williamsport Dickinson Seminary are now automatically members of the Alumni Association.

The second change increased the membership of the Alumni Association Board of Directors from a total of 15 members to a total of 21 members. The Board consists of three classes with 7 members in each class.

Following the annual meeting, a special meeting of Life Members of the Alumni Association was called by Alumni Pres. Don L. Larrabee. At this meeting it was decided that all money in the Life Membership Fund be turned over to the College Endowment Fund and that the income be used for scholarships to be administered by the College. This fund is to be known as the Alumni Life Members' Scholarship Fund.

Homecoming Plans

Nathan Stuart and his Committee will be busy making final plans for Homecoming, which will be held on Sat., Oct. 13, 1956. While details are not completed, it is urged that all Alumni send in the reservation form which will be found on the back page of The Bulletin, indicating their intention to attend.

Dr. R. C. Geigle Heads 1957 Alumni Fund

Alumni President Vic Hann has appointed Dr. Ralph C. Geigle, '37 to head the 1957 Alumni Fund Campaign. Dr. Geigle has been active in the affairs of Lyncam College and is currently serving on the College Board of Directors.

Following his graduation Cum Laude from Dickinson Junior College, he received the Bachelor of Arts Degree from Susquehanna University and the Master of Arts degree from Teachers College, Columbia University. His Doctorate in Education was received from The George Washington University.

Dr. Geigle has a background of professional experience that includes service as Superintendent, School District of the Borough of Oakmont, Oakmont, Pennsylvania; Supervising Principal, Susquehanna Joint School District of Duncannon and Marysville, Pennsylvania; Supervising Principal, North-Mont Joint School District, Turbotville, Pennsylvania, and Supervising Principal, School District of the Borough of Freeburg, Pennsylvania. He also served as Principal and Teacher at the Upper Mahanoy Township School District, Leck Hill, Pennsylvania.

In addition to his professional experience, Dr. Geigle has been active in the churches and in the community affairs in the areas where he has lived. The March of Dimes, Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Salvation Army, Community Chest and the Ground Observer Corps are some of the activities in which he has assumed leadership. He holds membership in the National Education Association, American Association of School Administrators, and Phi Delta Kappa, National Honorary Education Fraternity.

Presently, Dr. Geigle is serving as Superintendent of the Reading School District, a position that he has just assumed.

Dr. Geigle is married and the father of two children.

Invitations have already gone out from Dr. Geigle to the Class Agents for last year's Fund, asking them to be the "sales force" that will make the 1957 Fund bigger and better than ever.

Business and Industry Continue Support of Colleges

Support of the Foundation for Independent Colleges, Inc., of Pennsylvania, of which Lycoming College is a charter member, increased substantially during the fiscal year which ended May 31, 1956.

The fourth annual appeal to business and industry resulted in gifts totalling $308,296.24 an increase of 79% over the previous year.

The Pennsylvania Foundation is one of 37 similar state and regional organizations, covering 40 states, and having a combined membership of 424 non-tax supported institutions of higher education. The appeal is presented by the presidents of the member colleges, and the gifts are distributed by formula to the participating colleges.

New Brochure Available

The Office of Development has made available a new brochure entitled "Your Will and Lycoming College". The brochure stresses the importance of making a will and how such a will could include Lycoming College. If you have not made a will, or if you have made one and would like to know how you could remember your Alma Mater in its provisions, the Development Office would be most happy to send a copy to you. Simply address your inquiry to: The Development Office, Lycoming College, Williamsport, Pennsylvania.

36th Observance

November 11-17, 1956 is American Education Week. During this week hundreds of American colleges and universities will be taking advantage of this 36th observance to carry the story of higher education throughout the nation. One of the purposes of A.E.W. is to secure a wider public appreciation of the important opportunities ahead of the colleges and universities.

ADDRESS—ANYONE?

Oh where! oh where! has my alumnus gone—oh where! oh where! can he be? This is the theme song of the Alumni Office secretary when an alumni bulletin, letter or article is returned from the post office marked "Moved, left no address"; "Unknown"; "Refused"; "Returned for better address"; "No such post office"; etc., etc. None of these phrases give one any clue as to where this person may be, nor to whom the office might write to get this alumnus' present address.

YOU are the best "source" we have to keep our addressograph files current and correct. The next time you move, won't you pick up a form in the post office and notify us of your change of address, or simply drop us a note or card? We are always happy to be able to send you the bulletin, and we hope you enjoy receiving it.

Now, Sherlocks, can you help us to locate any of these "lost alums"? Thanks for your efforts!
